

Future plans include adding user authentication, integrating a manual generic calorie tracking module, and migrating the SQLite database to PostgreSQL for higher scalability and cloud deployment